

Dear Fathers,

On March 25th you will be given a once in a life time opportunity, the chance to publicly affirm your daughters.

I want to go over a few details as you ponder this special night. There are certain elements that make up a powerful blessing.

1. Write it down: Much of what you SAY to her that night will be a blur because of the emotion of the evening. If you write it down, she can re-read/re-live her special night over and over.
2. Please take time think about your daughter, your favorite memories of her, and all she means to you before you begin to write out what you want to say. Observe her for a few days to see growth that has occurred in her that you might not have noticed before. Think about her potential and the talents she has.
3. Practice putting on her tiara, keeping in mind her hair will probably be done up all fancy, so please do your best to put it on straight then push it down a bit until the combs go into her hair.

Think about the things that she likes, the special moments you have shared, poignant memories you have of her growing up – all these things will make your affirmation personal for your daughter. Watching home videos or looking through pictures can help jog your memory to make this a more personal and special moment for you and your daughter.

If you would like to read some wonderful examples spoken in past Celebrations, I have a booklet available, Called to Bless Her. Please let me know if you would like a copy to help you as you prepare for this very special event.

Cheering you on,
